

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The method of distributing information according to the present invention includes the steps of transmitting the intensive information stored in a news source file to a predetermined user; preparing a reply mail related to the news information selected from the gathered plurality of news information; extracting predetermined news information based on the received replay mail, creating a homepage based on the extracted news information, and registering the homepage in a predetermined site; and extracting predetermined news information based on the received reply mail, preparing a detailed mail based on the extracted news information, and transmitting the mail.